William Coggin

From his studio in Bushwick, Brooklyn, William Coggin works on ceramics and functional objects, which he has been exhibiting at Galerie SCENE OUVERTE in Paris since 2017. His work explores the organic possibilities of ceramics. Functionality often serves as a starting point, although some pieces are purely sculptural in nature. His creations range from tables, lighting and bookshelves to large bas-reliefs, always shaped from the material itself. He draws inspiration from nature: the subtle structures of coral reefs or the patterns of moss on the forest floor influence his forms and textures. From this same vision arose the blue Puzzle coffee table, composed of five fluidly shaped glazed ceramic parts. The piece can be arranged as desired and evokes a sense of drifting towards more exotic destinations.
